About ANAES

The African NGOs Alliance for Environmental Sustainability (ANAES) is born out of a collaborative effort between the Albertine Rift Conservation Society (ARCOS Network) and the Circular Bioeconomy Alliance. ANAES is committed to driving environmental sustainability in Africa by unifying the efforts of leading conservation NGOs across the continent.

ANAES As a Solution

In a rapidly changing world, where new environmental challenges emerge, collaborative efforts allow NGOs to be more adaptive and responsive. By sharing information and expertise, they can collectively address emerging threats and develop innovative solutions towards a sustainable future. Different NGOs often possess unique areas of expertise and focus. By collaborating, they can leverage each other's strengths and complement their skills to create comprehensive and integrated conservation programs that address multiple facets of environmental protection and sustainable development, instead of working in isolation.

ANAES Objective

Our partnership's core aim is to unite African NGOs' conservation efforts, fostering leadership, sharing experiences, and promoting active engagement in environmental sustainability practices across the continent, all guided by ANAES' theory of change.
